We continue to focus on sales and marketing expansion, as reflected in increases in product sales and network fees and will continue growing all revenue lines with our unique business model that provides property hosts with a range of solutions tailored to their specific needs. Our new equipment offerings have been extremely well-received within the industry with property partners and industry experts, further driving the demand for our products and services. Despite the volatility of the markets due to the COVID-19 crisis, we continue to create the infrastructure necessary to support our customers, while taking precautionary measures to protect our employees, staff, and stakeholders. Over the next several months, we plan to maintain our momentum as a major player in the exciting and growing EV market through a disciplined approach.”
